THE CLARENDON SERIES OF ENGLISH LITERATURE

CROWN OCTAVO. WITH FRONTISPIECE

THE series inaugurated by Milton: Poetry and Prose, with Essays by Johnson, Harliss, and Macaulay has been designed to present, within the compass of single and manageable volumes, a representative selection from the greatest authors together with the best criticism of their work. It is believed that the plan avoids two dangers. The ordinary volume of selections may have adequate notes and a competent introduction, and yet fail to be sufficiently stimulating to interest the reader in his author; and from this springs the tendency to put before the student, not the writings of the greatest authors, but books about them; and questions are set on Macaulay's essay on Milton or Johnson and answered by pupils ignorant of Paradise Lost and the Lives of the Poets. A single volume containing the best parts of Johnson's and Macaulay's essays on Milton with the Minor Poems and substantial extracts from the Epics, should interest any reader capable of being interested, and it will give the teacher the fullest opportunity of making the most of good material. For the plan has been found by experiment to have this further advantage, that it requires the minimum of editorial introduction and notes. The several Essays explain and correct each other, and they explain and are explained by the specimens. The student who has read Johnson's strictures upon Lycidas, and Macaulay's upon Johnson, can hardly fail to turn the leaves and read Lycidas itself; and will be led to form a judgement as well of Milton as of his critics.

The success of the experiment has persuaded the Delegates that the method can be fruitfully applied to other writers. They have secured the services as General Editors of Mr. D. NICHOL SMITH, Goldsmiths' Reader in the University of Oxford, and Mr. A. M. D. HUGHES, editor of Carlyle's Frederick the Great and Past and Present, Shelley's Prometheus Unbound, and Tennyson's Poems of 1842 (Clarendon Press), and have in preparation volumes on Sir Thomas More, Spenser, Bacon, Bunyan, Dryden, Addison, Swift, Defoe, Pope, Gray, Johnson, Burke, Gibbon, Cowper, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Byron, Shelley, Keats, Lamb, Carlyle, &c. Among those who are contributing to the series are Sir WALTER RALEIGH (Professor of English in the University of Oxford), Sir ARTHUR QUILLER-COUCH (Professor of English in the University of Cambridge), Mr. LOGAN PEARSALL SMITH (author of The Life and Letters of Sir Henry Wotton, editor of Donne's Sermons, &c.), Mr. G. S. GORDON (Professor of English in the University of Leeds), Mr. THOMAS SECCOMBE (Lecturer in English in the University of Oxford), Mr. H. ELLERSHAW (Professor of English in the University of Durham), Mr. J. E. V. CROFTS (Professor of English in the University of Bristol), Mr. and Mrs. P. S. ALLEN (joint editors of Erasmii Epistolae), Mr. E. A. GREENING LAMBORN (author of Residues of Criticism), Mr. W. S. TOMKINSON (author of The Teaching of English), Mr. R. W. CHAPMAN (Secretary to the Delegates of the Oxford University Press), Mr. HUMPHREY S. MILFORD (Publisher to the University of Oxford).
