PREFACE

THIS little book contains some addresses recently given at Free Church meetings during the year in which I have had the honour and happiness of presiding over the Federation of the Free Churches of England and Wales. I am afraid there is not much contentious theological matter here for those who love the noise of battle and the clash of arms; and party politics find also no space or scope. Those who look for either of these in a collection of Free Church addresses must necessarily be disappointed: we are limited by our organisation to the pursuit of love and holiness and such things whereby we may edify one another. Excuse must also be asked for the disconnected character of the subjects chosen. They have been given at various times and places, and are printed in response to numerous appeals;

but if they are not bound together by any controlling thought, they may serve to give an idea of the teaching and testimony in our united public meetings, as well as at some denominational gatherings, and last, but not least, amongst my friends in the Settlement at Woodbrooke.

RENDEL HARRIS.
