THIS LITTLE VOLUME IS AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED

BY HER

COUSIN.

P R E F A C E .

It is not without great diffidence as to its merits, that I offer this little volume.

But emboldened by the favor with which a generous Public always receive the first essays of the young, I am induced to send it forth into the world ; trusting that, although the cynic may find much to blame, the many will not be so severe in their judgment ; and while reading will consider that they are written at a very early age, in hours stolen from rest or recreation. If through the partial judgment of friends I have erred in presuming on your indulgence, the only reparation in my power is—not to intrude again.
