Extract from the law relating to copyright:

"Suc. 4996. Any person publicly performing or representing any dramatic or musical composition for which a copyright has been obtained, without the consent of the proprietor of said dramatic or musical composition or his heirs or assigns, shall be liable for damages therefor, such damages in all cases to be assessed at such sum not less than one hundred dollars for the first and fifty dollars for every subsequent performance as to the Court shall appear just. If the unlawful performance and representation be wilful and not for profit, such person or persons shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be imprisoned for a period not exceeding one year."

PERSONS OF THE PLAY

- MR. DARCY—(or Pemberley, Drabyshire). "Possessed of a fine tall person, hardsome features, noble mien, and . . . ten thousand a year clever . . . haughty, reserved and fastidious; his manners, though well-bred, were not inviting. 'Some people call him proud,' said Mrs. Reynolds, the housekeeper at Pemberley, 'but I am sure I never saw anything of it. . . . He is the best landlord and the best master that ever lived.'"
- MR. BINGLEY—(or Netherfield, Hertfordshire, Darcy's Friend). "Just what a young man ought to be; sensible and good-humoured, lively . . . such happy manners! So much ease, with such perfect good breeding . . . Also handsome, which a young man ought likewise to be if he possibly can."
- COLONEL FITZWILLIAM-(COUSIN TO DARCY). "About thirty, not handsome, but in person and address most truly the gentleman."
- MR. BENNET—(or Longbourn). "An odd mixture of quick parts, sarcastic humour, reserve and caprice. He was fond of the country and of books, and from these tastes had arisen his principal enjoyments."
- MR. COLLINS—(A COUSIN OF MR. BENNEY, AND NEXT IN THE ENTAIL OF LONGBOURN ESTATE). "A tall, heavy-looking young man of five-and-twenty. His air was grave and stately, and his manners very formal. His veneration for his patroness, Lady Catherine de Bourg, mingling with a very good opinion of himself and of his authority as a clergyman . . . made him altogether a mixture of pride and obsequiousness, self-importance and humility."

- SIR WILLIAM LUCAS—(AN INTIMATE FRUEND AND NEIGHBOUR OF THE BENNETS). "Formerly in trade in Meryton
 ... he had risen to the honour of knighthood by an address to the King during his mayoralty. The distinction had ... given him a disgust to his business, and, ... quitting it, he had removed ... to Lucas Lodge, where he could think with pleasure of his own importance, and ... occupy himself solely in being civil to all the world."
- COLONEL FORSTER--(THE COLONEL OF THE REGIMENT STATIONED AT MERYTON).
- MR. WICKHAM—(AN OFFICER IN THE REGIMENT). "Endowed with all the best parts of beauty—a fine countenance, a good figure, and a very pleasing address. As false and deceitful as he is insinuating."

MR. DENNY-(Another Offices in the Regiment).

HARRIS-(THE BUTLER AT LONGBOURN).

- MRS. BENNET—(THE WIFE OF MR. BENNET). "A woman of mean understanding, little information, and uncertain temper. When she was discontented she funcied herself nervous. The business of her life was to get her daughters married; its solace was visiting and news."
- JANE—(Eldest Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennet). "She united with great strength of feeling a composure of temper and a uniform cheerfulness of manner. Her mild and steady candour always pleaded allowances, and urged the possibility of mistakes."
- ELIZABETH—(THEIR SECOND DAUGHTER). "Although not so handsome as Jane, her face was rendered uncommonly intelligent by the beautiful expression of her dark eyes. She had a lively, playful disposition, which delighted in anything ridiculous, with more quickness of observation and less plancy of temper than her sister. There was a mixture of sweetness and archness in her manner which made it difficult for her to affront anybody."

- LYDIA—(Their Youngest Daughten). "A stout, well-grown girl of fifteen, with a fine complexion and a good-humoured countenance—a favourite with her mother, whose affection had brought her into public at an early age."
- LADY LUCAS—(THE WIFE OF SIR WILLIAM). "Not too clever to be a valuable neighbour to Mrs. Bennet."
- CHARLOTTE LUCAS—(DAUGHTER OF SIB WILLIAM AND LADY LUCAS). "A sensible, intelligent young woman, about twenty-seven, . . . Elizabeth's intimate friend."
- MISS BINGLEY—(SISTER OF MB. BINGLEY). "A very fine lady . . . but proud and conceited."
- LADY CATHERINE DE BOURG—(Aunt of Darcy and Patroness of Mr. Collins). "A tall, large woman, with strongly marked features, which might once have been handsome. Her air was not conciliating. . . . Whatever she said, was spoken in so authoritative a tone as marked her self-importance."
- HILL-(THE HOUSEKEEPER AT LONGBOURN).
- MARTHA-(THE MAID AT MR. COLLINS'S PARSONAGE).
