"Mind that there is always a certain cachet about great men—they speak of common life more largely and generously than common men do—they regard the world with a manlier countenance, and see its real features more fairly than the timid shufflers who only dare to look up at life through blinkers, or to have an opinion when there is a crowd to back it."—English Humorists.

"I remember poor Byron, Hobhouse, Trelawney, and myself, dining with Cardinal Mezzocaldo at Rome,' Captain Sumph began, 'and we had some Orvieto wine for dinner, which Byron liked very much. And I remember how the Cardinal regretted that he was a single man. We went to Civita Vecchia two days afterwards where Byron's yacht was—and, by Jove, the Cardinal died within three weeks, and Byron was very sorry for he rather liked him.'

"A devilish interesting story, indeed,' Wagg said. 'You should publish some of these stories, Captain Sumph, you really should,' Shandon said."—Pendennis.
