PREFACE

My preface must be an apology. When I first wrote these gardening notes, I had no intention of rushing — where angels fear to tread — into print! They were written with the object of amusing an invalid relative at the Antipodes, in the hope that she would be interested in reading of some of our experiences in this (to her) unknown land. But they never reached her, as she died before I could finish them. They have, however, been read by friends, who have encouraged me to offer them to the public; and although they may not be so novel to many as they would have been to her, I hope my little descriptions of daily doings in India may find an indulgent reader or two, both there and elsewhere.
