MATING IN MARRIAGE.

By H. B. PHILBROOK.

A better object than a discovery of what will ensure a proper mating of the sexes in marriage cannot be disclosed, and, in our opinion, a person can become acquainted with the whole cause of both mating and mismating in matrimony.

One of the consequences of mismating in marriage is a constant quarrel between the pair, and the other that no children can be born as a result of the wedlock. Many cases are existing where the wife is without a child and by a cause of which both of the parties are wholly ignorant.

Let us give a bit of advice concerning the question of mating of the sexes in a wedlock. When a woman is married to a man whose origin in the animal world was one that could not beget an offspring with a creature of the species of which the wife obtained her origin no child can be born to the pair. In other words, if the origin of the couple were of different species of animals, that could not produce offspring with each other, these persons will be unproductive.
