THE NEW ABELARD

VOL. I.

WORKS BY ROBERT BUCHANAN.

'The dumb, wistful yearning in man to something higher—yearning such as the animal creation showed in the Greek period toward the human—has not as yet found any interpreter equal to Buchanan.'—THE SPECTATOR.

'In the great power of appealing to universal Humanity lies Buchanan's security. The light of Nature has been his guide, and the human heart his study. He most unquestionably attains an exalted rank among the poets of this century, and produces works which cannot fail to be accepted as incontestably great, and worthy of the world's preservation.'

CONTEMPORARY REVIEW.

'Buchanan is the most faithful poet of Nature among the new men. He is her familiar. Like no British poet, save himself, he knows her.'

PREFATORY NOTE.

The leading character in this book is represented, dramatically, as resembling, both in his strength and weakness, the great Abelard of history. For this very reason he is described as failing miserably, where a stronger man might never have failed, in grasping the Higher Rationalism as a law for life. He is, in fact, not meant for an ideal hero, but for an ardent intellectual man, hopelessly biased against veracity both by temperament and hereditary superstition.

I make this explanation in order to be
