CRISIS OF THE VOICES

BY H. D. DE VRIES

The Crisis of the Voices
This is a story of the voices that speak to us from the past and the future
and the voices that speak to us from within our own souls

CANTO I.

“’Twas fifteen hundred years ago:
How strangely swift the ages flow!
With all their passion and their roar,
Like billows breaking on the shore!
And we, who watch and muse, forget
The wide, wild tide is foaming yet,
And bears us onward and away,
Like bubbles of the bursting spray,
Or clouds that melted yesterday.

“’Twas fifteen hundred years ago,
When ope’d the rocky tomb—and lo!
