

PETER, A CAT O'ONE TAIL: HIS LIFE AND ADVENTURES

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649503070

Peter, a Cat O'One Tail: His Life and Adventures by Charles Morley & Louis Wain

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

CHARLES MORLEY & LOUIS WAIN

PETER, A CAT O'ONE
TAIL: HIS LIFE AND ADVENTURES

PETER

A CAT O' ONE TAIL

HIS LIFE AND ADVENTURES

ILLUSTRATED BY LOUIS WAIN
(PETER'S PROPRIETOR)

WRITTEN BY CHARLES MORLEY
(A PAL OF PETER'S)

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS
NEW YORK LONDON
27 WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET 24 BEDFORD STREET, STRAND
The Knickerbocker Press
1892

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.		PAGE
Introduces the reader to the night of the great storm, and to the family circle.
Peter is born. His grandfather, Lear, and his mother, Cordelia. The coffin in the fire, and the fidelity of Ann, who turned executioner		1
CHAPTER II.
The household settles down into its usual routine. The kittens open their eyes. I choose the chubby one. How the crowing of the cock affected the christening. We call him Peter as a warning to fibbers			9
CHAPTER III.
Peter's young days. A word about his father and mother. Peter's home amongst the curios; the black hole behind the skeleton's foot. Peter's first mouse. The linnet and the canary. Peter cries for the moon			9
CHAPTER IV.
Peter is instructed in deportment, and learns to read, to talk, and to say his prayers. He shows a commendable thirst for knowledge, and really becomes a most accomplished member of society. A word on mewing, or cats' language			13
CHAPTER V.
London being very hot Peter and I leave for the country. Peter enjoys the change, and revels in country sights and sounds; he goes out fishing with Jack. We proceed to the seaside, but Peter shows no liking for the ocean			19
CHAPTER VI.
Concerns the queer old lady in the poke bonnet and her nine cats. Poison! Was it revenge? Peter goes astray and I advertise for him. Many cats call, but none are chosen. At last!			24

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
CHAPTER VII.
Peter in lodgings. Mrs. Nagsby and the euphonium. Sarah's base accusations against Peter. King Arthur the greyhound, and his adventure with Mrs. Nagsby's lady lodger. Peter steals Mrs. Nagsby's teeth, and the consequences . . . . .	32
CHAPTER VIII.
Life in Excelsior Mansions. The old graveyard and Peter's favorite tombstone. Concerning Deadman's Passage. The verger's story of the man who came to a violent end because he would have a fine coffin. Peter is lost. The flash of light on the window-blind . . . . .	40
CHAPTER IX.
I dream horrible dreams, and make inquiries respecting Peter. A friendly pot-man puts me on the scent, and takes me to see a famous Professor who works a cat-and-dog show . . . . .	49
CHAPTER X.
Night in Smith's Row. Introduces the human fly and the lion-maned lady, who perform some staggering feats. The Professor owns that he has just bought an educated cat, and invites me to call and see him . . . . .	53
CHAPTER XI.
I call upon the Professor and once more encounter the human fly and the lion-maned lady. The Professor and the mermaid. The performing cats and the flashes of fire. The midnight vision explained in a very simple way. I stop and dine with the Professor . . . . .	58
CHAPTER XII.
An interlude which deals with a bull-dog with glass eyes and cruel teeth. The dog's remarkable history and his lamentable end . . . . .	63
CHAPTER XIII.
I go with the Professor on a Sunday excursion to the East End. The bird market. Mr. Chaffinch, the dog- and bird-fancier. I am introduced to the purveyor of cats' meat to the Royal Family, who is inclined to be haughty; and also make the acquaintance of Miss Tew and the white mice . . . . .	69
CHAPTER XIV.
The purveyor of cats' meat to the Royal Family. How he "loored" Peter away from the bosom of his family. Mr. Chaffinch on coincidences, followed by Mr. Chaffinch's story of the parrot which appealed to the Archbishop, and was the means of restoring a missing husband to his wife and family . . . . .	78

CONTENTS.

v

CHAPTER XV.

PAGE

Showing how Peter paid his addresses to Miss Badroulbador, a certain Persian cat. The course of true love runs as usual. A scratch in time saves nine. Pleasures of the country. Peter and the bees . . . . . 84

CHAPTER XVI.

London after a visit to the country. Peter is glad to get back to town, but turns up his nose at the Cockney sun. Reflections on London roofs. Peter goes to his club, and the chapter necessarily closes . . . . . 90

CHAPTER XVII.

A few words on gratitude. Peter always a grateful animal. Shows also how he objected to kittens . . . . . 94

CHAPTER XVIII.

Peter goes to a hotel, and pays his ten shillings a day. He flirts with the chambermaids, and makes journeys in the elevator. The alarm of fire. Peter in disgrace, and Peter's liver . . . . . 97

CHAPTER XIX.

Peter, indulging too freely in the pleasures of the table, is taken to see the doctor. The strange crowd at the doctor's door. The poor little girl, and the cat that lived upon mice . . . . . 101

CHAPTER XX.

Peter in his old age. The frivolous Polly Winkles. The circle in the sitting-room. Peter says his prayers and goes to bed . . . . . 106

