[Note.—The Editor lays little claim to originality in the compilation of this book. He has been largely dependent upon the writings of others for the information it contains. For a number of the excellent cuts which are printed in this volume he is indebted to the courtesy of the Rev. E. R. Young, and also for the kind permission to reprint sections of his interesting volumes, "By Canoe and Dog Train" and "Indian Wigwams and Northern Camp Fires." He begs also to acknowledge indebtedness to the admirable volume of the Rev. John McLean, Ph.D., on "The Indians of Canada," and for the extracts acknowledged elsewhere from the Rev. J. Semmens, the Rev. J. McDougall and other writers who have admirably treated this theme. —W. H. W.]

THE "GLAD TIDINGS"

THE NATIVE RACES OF NORTH AMERICA.

THE name Indians, given to the native races of America, commemorates the mistaken idea of its discoverers, that they had reached the shores of the Asiatic continent. A short account of these races, and of their character, custom, and tribal divisions, is necessary in order to understand the long and cruel conflict between the white man and the red for the possession of the New World.

All over the North American continent, from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Alleghanies to the Rocky Mountains, are found the remains of an extinct and pre-historic people. These remains consist, for the most part, of earthen mounds, often of vast extent and almost countless numbers. Hence their unknown creators are called the Mound-Builders. These strange structures may be divided into two classes: Enclosures and Mounds proper. The chief purpose of the Enclosures seems to have been for defence—the formation, as it were, of a fortified camp. They were sometimes of great size, covering many hundreds of acres. They were surrounded by parapets of earth, in the form of circles, octagons, or similar figures. They were evidently designed for protection against an intrusive race, and formed a line of forts from the Alleghanies to the Ohio. Another striking form of enclosure is that designated Turtle mound, 306 feet long, 6 feet high; 7 and 8, lizard mounds, 8 with curved tail; 9, cruciform figure, 209 feet long, 72 feet wide; 8 and 4, fox figures; 5, bear; 14, buffalo; 12, 13, 10, and 6, bird-like forms.

Animal Mounds. These are outlines in earth-work, in low relief, of sacred animals—probably the totems of different tribes, as the turtle, lizard, serpent, alligator, eagle, buffalo, and the like. They are especially numerous in the Valley of the Wisconsin. The "Great Serpent" of Adams County, Ohio, is over a thousand feet long, and the "Alligator" of Licking
