PREFACE.

THE rapid sale of this work has induced the compiler to issue another edition, which has been carefully revised and enlarged. He desires respectfully to acknowledge the flattering communications received from several of the Colleagues of the late Mr. Casson, as well as from other Ministers and friends, expressive of their approbation of the work, and their conviction of the faithfulness of the portraiture. He has had the gratification to learn that the book has been made a blessing to those who have read it; and he is encouraged to hope that its more extensive circulation will, through the blessing of God, be productive of still more gracious results. To those kind friends who have favoured the writer, and his brother, with their valuable aid,—he desires to repeat his most grateful acknowledgments; and trusts that where
