T O

Sir HENRY GEORGE LIDDELL, Bart.

S I R,

THE Author of the following Tour, cannot with so much propriety inscribe it to any one as to you, by whose means it was undertaken, and whose presence rendered it so agreeable. To make that pleasure more permanent in his own breast, induced the Author to commit his remarks to paper, and the Indulgence of his Friends has contributed to make them public. For this reason, he sends the following Volume forth, "with all its Imperfections on its head"; and if it shall at any time fill up a leisure hour for those whom he so highly respects, and to whom he takes this opportunity of acknowledging the greatest Obligations, he hopes, though they may not find much to applaud, that their time will, at least, have been innocently employed.

I am,

SIR,

with much deference and respect,

your obliged humble Servant,

MATTHEW CONSETT.
