AFTER FORTY YEARS

*"By the flow of the inland river,
Whence the fleets of iron have fled,
Where the blades of the grave-grass quiver,
Asleep are the ranks of the dead;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the one the blue,
Under the other the grey."*

—From the State of Mississippi, most charitable and beautiful.

The writer of this little work makes no apology for placing it before the public but that he has waited so long—waited for an abler hand. Its aim is that prejudice and ignorance may cease to bring forth untruth, and that the reproach which naturally follows what is supposed to be an unsuccessful effort may be mitigated, and a mite contributed towards the establishment of facts.

This third edition as it goes to press in June, 1908, contains many interesting truths heretofore not published.
