CHAPTER I.

UNDER THE UMBRELLA.

'AND do you really mean it's true, Nancy? It's just as if I can't believe that the lady who lives in the beautiful house, with the lovely green blinds and the china flower-pots in the window, would let a poor little girl like me go to see her;' and the face of the said poor little girl looked very wistful in its eager inquiry.

'To be sure it's every word of it true,' replied her companion; 'don't I tell you I have been there myself, and it's just as lovely as anything! I don't think I have ever dreamt of anything half as beautiful—and I have my dreams, you know. Let's see, now, if I can tell you what it's like. Well, you know, you go
