THIS Institution was incorporated in 1867. Cambridge was selected for its site, in order to take advantage of the peculiar opportunities of this place for that grade of theological education which the School was intended to impart.

The buildings of stone form a group of unusual beauty, and of uniform architectural style. They are as follows :

1. ST. JOHN'S MEMORIAL CHAPEL, erected in 1869, by the late ROBERT MEANS MASON, accommodates about five hundred persons. In it there are held daily Morning and Evening Prayer and the usual services on Sunday, under the direction of the Dean. The students of the School are expected to make this their regular place of worship, and, after them, in accordance with the intention of the donor, provision is made for the accommodation of members of Harvard University. The seats that remain are open to the public.

2. LAWRENCE HALL, completed in 1880, is the gift of the late AMOS ADAMS LAWRENCE, and is the dwelling-house of the School. It can accommodate thirty-seven students, each one having a bedroom and sitting-room, and is convenient and tasteful in all its appointments. There is, also, a large parlor, where are kept on file newspapers and periodicals.

3. REED HALL, containing the library and the lecture-rooms was built in 1875, and is the gift of the munificent founder of the School, the late BENJAMIN TYLER REED.

4. BURNHAM HALL is the refectory of the School, and was built in 1879 by the late JOHN APPLETON BURNHAM. It contains a lofty dining-hall, forty-five feet by thirty, and also a kitchen, laundry, matron's and servants' apartments.
