COULSON KERNAHAN

A BOOK OF STRANGE SINS

By the same Author.

'A DEAD MAN'S DIARY'

By COULSON KERNAHAN.

Fourth and Library Edition, in New Binding, Crown 8vo, Cloth, 3s. 6d.

Some Opinions.

MR. J. BARRIE, in the British Weekly :—"The vigour of this book is great; and the anonymous author has an uncommon gift of intensity. On many readers it may be guessed the book will have a mesmeric effect."

MR. I. ZANGWILL, in Ariel :—"There can be no doubt of the force and freshness of most of the book, of the fine literary quality of some of the chapters, and of the interest of the whole. . . . And there is, too, many a burst of beautiful English."

The Speaker :—"We find beautiful and appreciative writing in these pages."

Daily Telegraph—"Great reverence and much literary power."

Evening News :—"The self-revelations are those of a man of culture, if not of genius. . . . It is an awful book, and either callous or brainless must the man or woman be who can rise from its perusal without tumultuous and chastening thought."

Globe :—"A brilliant success."

Daily Chronicle :—"Very remarkable and beautiful."

Review of Reviews :—"One of the most successful volumes of the last two years. Intensely interesting and exceedingly well written."

The Rock :—"Indefinitely widens one's outlook, multiplies possibilities, and adds cubits to the stature of some."

Methodist Recorder :—"The anonymous writer has a poet's soul, and his beauty of expression is resistless."

Whitehall Review :—"It is naturally secured more than ordinary favour. In the interests of humanity this fact is lamentable, for the wide dissemination of a book at once so fascinatingly eloquent, and, save to the strong-minded few, so insidiously pernicious, is certain to conduce to the author's further employment, in the like perilous direction, of talents great enough to achieve really noble work. . . . This fascinating, picturesque, impressive story is none the less baneful because clothed in beautiful language. Its wonderful realism is its most dangerous feature."

Christian World :—"Wrought up to an almost unendurable pitch of interest."

Public Opinion :—"Fascinating, picturesque, and powerful."

'LYRA ELEGANTIARUM'

A Collection of the Best Social Verse.

Edited by FREDERICK LOCKER-LAMPSON, assisted by COULSON KERNAHAN.

Crown 8vo, cloth, cut or uncut edges, 2s. Also in various leather bindings for Presentation.

Some Opinions.

MR. A. C. SWINBURNE, in The Forum :—"There is no better or completer anthology in the language. I doubt, indeed, if there be any so good or so complete. No objection or suggestion which can reasonably be offered can in any way diminish our obligation, either to the original editor, or to his evidently able assistant, Mr. Kernahan."

"A radiant and harmonious gallery of song."

"Were but this (the concluding poem) swept away, the close of a beautiful volume would be beautiful and appropriate beyond all praise or thanks."

MR. EDMUND GOSSE, in The Illustrated London News :—"Where so many skilful hands have tried to produce rival anthologies, these two, each in its own class, preserve their unquestionable superiority. Mr. Locker-Lampson has been helped in this republication by Mr. Coulson Kernahan, who has entered into the elegant spirit of the editor, and has continued his labours with taste and judgment."

The Times :—"Deservedly popular. . . . Needs only a cordial word of welcome."

The Athenæum :—"This charming collection is a favourite with all who like verse of that light and graceful kind in which Mr. Locker, to call him by his more familiar name, excels; and its appearance in a cheap form is matter for congratulation."

The Spectator :—"A volume so charming, and, in spite of the one or two microscopic faults we have pointed out, so perfect."

The Speaker :—"The book is the best of its kind in the language, and therefore it needs no praise."

The Saturday Review :—"Its merits have been too long established to need any further praise."

The Graphic :—"A volume every page of which is a delight."

The Echo :—"It is the merest matter of fact to say that a real knowledge of these two volumes—the 'Treasury' and the 'Lyra'—is a liberal education in itself."

The National Observer :—"The book is a book for everyone to have, and which none but the unsalted of the earth will read without gratitude."
