PREFACE.

THE writer has for the last forty years, in season and out of season, strongly urged the vast importance of the necessity for improving the "Homes" of the Agricultural Labourer.

This great fact is acknowledged by all to be absolutely necessary to stop the demoralising tendencies produced by the want of "Healthy Moral Homes."

This book, he trusts, will assist to that effect by its plain homely truths, endeavouring to produce in their formation "solid utility" with such comforts, rendering the labourer's cottage what it should be—a "Home."

The Introduction will repay a careful perusal, showing the opinions a century back justly entertained by that good man, the great "Philanthropist Howard;" also, since his time, by T. W. Coke, Esq., of Holkham; the Duke of Bedford; the present Earl of Leicester; Lords Palmerston and Kinnaird; with many other well-disposed men, such as the late Mr. Loudon (to whom architects and the country owe a debt of gratitude); also E. Chadwick, Esq.;

Dr. Southwood Smith ; the Editors of the " Art Union," " Builder," " Building News," and " Engineer ;" Miss Martineau ; and to George Glenny, Esq., the Agricultural Labourers' constant and best " garden friend."

The Plates will explain themselves, although the letter-press description and specific details must be examined with care. The writer believes that, in most counties of Great Britain, the average cost will be the same.

Sincerely trusting such " Homes " may be the " rule " in all our agricultural parishes, and not the exception, is the desire of a " Practical Workman."

A few pages are devoted under the head of "Handy Hints" useful to know, and for occasional reference on matters to all connected in cottage buildings and gardens, showing the advantages of a " Stitch in time Saving nine ;" also, the Profitable Duty of " Waste not Want not," and its great importance by strongly inculcating the positive necessity of " a place for everything, and everything in its place ;" the advantages of "Savings Banks," and the disadvantages of "Smoking."
