PREFACE

THE following pages contain a few thoughts—perhaps rather on English gardening than English gardens—which I have been asked to write. I am much indebted to Mrs. Davidson for the chapter on “Cottage Gardens,” to Mrs. Bardswell for her thoughts on “The Herb Garden,” and to Mr. S. W. Fitzherbert for “Winter in the Garden.” Miss Beatrice Parsons heartily thanks those who have lent pictures painted by[†] herself for the purpose of illustrating this book.

E. T. COOK.
