FOREWORD

THE aim of these Sermons is entirely practical. They have all been preached in the course of the regular ministry at St. Paul's, Portman Square, in which it is my constant endeavour to deal week by week with the problems and difficulties of the ordinary man in relation to the Christian life. Without any intended sequence of thought, their general intention is to help men toward that fulness of life in Christ which is indeed as a flood-tide in its power. All other considerations have been subordinated to this end in their preparation and delivery, and in yielding to some repeated requests for their publication. If they shall be the means of helping any to a realisation of Christ's manifold grace in its bearing upon their lives I shall be eternally grateful to Him.
