FOREWORD

THE eyes of credulity see a good many things which do not exist. The eyes of intellectual cynicism do not see many notable things which do exist. The eyes of rational faith combine discernment with criticism, and possess the insight of vital experience as well as the caution of cool and careful appraisal.

The following papers attempt to say in a somewhat easy and discursive fashion something about that view of life which appears to the eyes of Christian faith as it inspects the contents and the relationships of its own experience. About half of them first saw the light in the London weekly, The Christian Commonwealth. The others have not before been printed.
