"But now I am hungry. Dost thou hunt with me this dawn?" said Kaa.

The Second Jungle Book

Kipling has pictured for us the quests of the jungle folk. In fashion similar to theirs, we salute our fellow sojourners in the thickets of social research with the familiar "Good hunting, all!"

PREFACE

This bibliography is the fifth volume produced under the project Negro Migration, conducted in the Department of Sociology at Columbia University, under subsidy by the Social Science Research Council, and the Columbia University Council for Research in the Social Sciences. The previous volumes, in order of appearance, are:

Kennedy, Louise Venable, The Negro Peasant Turns Cityward

Dutcher, Dean, The Negro in Modern Industrial Society

Lewis, Edward E., The Mobility of the Negro

Kiser, Clyde Vernon, Sea Island to City

The present authors are most appreciative of the financial aid and encouragement given by the Social Science Research Council, and the Columbia University Council for Research in the Social Sciences. They also realize their debt to those who have presided over, and participated in, the building up of the splendid files of the National Urban League, the Russell Sage Foundation, and the Division of Negro Literature of the One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Street Branch of the New York Public Library. Without these collections the bibliography would have been far less complete than it now is. Access to them, and aid in their use, have greatly facilitated its preparation. Finally, invaluable criticism and suggestion have been afforded by many, colored and white, who are interested in this important topic. To all these, the authors extend their thanks.
