

A CONCORDANCE TO THE
CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA: WITH A
CLASSIFIED INDEX AND QUESTIONS
FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649036202

A Concordance to the Constitution of the United States of America: With a Classified Index and Questions for Educational Purposes by Charles W. Stearns

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

CHARLES W. STEARNS

A CONCORDANCE TO THE
CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA: WITH A
CLASSIFIED INDEX AND QUESTIONS
FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES

To Senator Sumner,
with the Compiler's profoundest Regards,
Courtland St.
Baltimore 11th May '72

A CONCORDANCE

TO THE

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA;

WITH A

CLASSIFIED INDEX,

AND

QUESTIONS FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES:

BY

CHARLES W. STEARNS, M.D.

Jubente populo, ordinata erat in duodecim tabulis tota justitia.

Florus, 1, 24.

Civitates aut coedere novas, aut conservare jam conditas.

Cicero, Rep. 1, 7.

NEW YORK:
POOLE & MACLAUCHLAN, PRINTERS,
205-213 EAST TWELFTH STREET.
1872.

U. S. 218.72
~~6396 32.5~~

1874, April 28.
Bequest of Hon. Chas Sumner.
(H. U. 1830.)

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1872, by
CHARLES W. STEARNS,
In the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
PREFACE.....	v
CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.....	1
CLASSIFIED INDEX.....	23
I. THE PEOPLE.—Citizenship, Representation, Naturalization; Their Liberties; Service, Slavery.....	23-27
II. THE CONGRESS.—Their Powers, Duties, Privileges, Prohibi- tions; The Senate and Senators; The House of Repre- sentatives and Members; Legislation, its Forms and Limitations.....	28-41
III. THE PRESIDENT.—His Duties, Powers, and Liability; The Vice-President.....	42-46
IV. PUBLIC JUSTICE.—Jurisdiction and the Laws; The Courts; Trials, Punishment.....	46-52
V. THE STATES.—Their Relations, Rights, and Restrictions.....	52-58
VI. ELECTIONS.—Rules and Forms; The Right to Vote.....	59-62
VII. OFFICE.—Eligibility; Honors, Profits and Trusts; Vacancies and Removals.....	63-66
VIII. MILITARY AND NAVAL AFFAIRS.—The Army and Militia; War, Invasion, Rebellion.....	66-69
IX. FOREIGN RELATIONS.....	69-71
X. MARITIME AFFAIRS.....	71
XI. COMMERCE.—Domestic; Foreign.....	71-72
XII. THE TREASURY.—Revenue; Public Credit; Money.....	72-75
CONCORDANCE TO THE CONSTITUTION.....	77
QUESTIONS ON THE CONSTITUTION.....	143

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both primary and secondary data collection techniques. The analysis focuses on identifying trends and patterns over time, which is crucial for making informed decisions.

The third section provides a detailed breakdown of the results. It shows that there has been a significant increase in sales volume, particularly in the middle and lower income brackets. This suggests that the current marketing strategy is effective in reaching a wider audience.

Finally, the document concludes with several key recommendations. It suggests that the company should continue to invest in research and development to stay ahead of the competition. Additionally, it recommends a more targeted marketing approach to maximize the return on investment.

PREFACE.

CONCORDANCES and INDEXES have been compiled of such books as are deemed of the greatest value. Probably there exists no work of the same compass, that, at the present time, or in the near future, seems likely to affect the well-being of so large a number of mankind as the written Constitution of the United States of America.

But the Constitution is so brief an instrument, that any aids in referring to its text would seem hardly necessary. Brief as it is, however, questions often arise, as to what it does, or does not, contain; while the force or meaning of its words, and the scope of its powers and provisions, have been the occasion of the grandest debates recorded in the history of free governments.

The language of the Constitution, though generally smooth, and sometimes elegant, is yet simple almost to plainness, often elliptical, and, in several passages, almost colloquial. In short, its language is that of every-day life, and was, no doubt, meant to be such. This simplicity, with its brevity, fit it to be read and understood by all classes of persons, of even a rudimentary education. And for this reason also, a person who is not a jurist may, perchance, be qualified for executing a work like the present.

Those who undertake to make a Concordance to any work will not find it simply a mechanical task; as the judgment of the compiler is constantly exercised in deciding what portion of the sentence containing the given word he can best take to fill the allotted space of a single line, so that the fragment copied may retain an idea of the whole. Still more judgment is required to arrange the plan of a Classified, or Analytical Index to any important work. But such Indexes, when well prepared, are found to make their respective works, to some extent, a commentary on themselves. There is also an incidental advantage in having a Concordance or Vocabulary of the Constitution,—that it familiarizes the use of the same words, and perpetuates its phraseology in laws founded upon it, and discussions relating to it; by which its permanency is likely to be promoted and secured.

The practice of omitting the small words and the auxiliary verbs, in preparing a concordance, has not been adhered to in the present work. The negatives no, not, nor, neither, and even the words if and may, are all very impressive words in the Constitution; and especially the word shall, which so often serves to mark the conditional future of a verb;—but its force in the Constitution is oftener imperative, and not seldom, imperial!

The advantages of a Classified Index to the Constitution will at once be seen by glancing at the extracts under any one of the headings; as for example, under that of The Congress. It would require considerable time for a person to gain a ready and exact knowledge of all the powers and duties of Congress; but here the whole is presented at one view. Take another example,—that of The States, the question of whose rights and sovereignty has been the theme of long debate, and finally, the cause of a civil war.

Americans may, and ought, to be as well acquainted with the provisions of the Constitution as with the simplest rules of arithmetic; yet their limited knowledge of the subject is somewhat to be wondered at, when we consider how widely the rudiments of education are diffused, and the intense interest felt by all classes in the course of public affairs. Of this imperfect knowledge several illustrations could be offered,—except that they might here be deemed out of place, though not questions of a partisan kind,—of matters expressly provided for and settled in the Constitution, but which were at times severally discussed or proposed in the public journals, as though the Constitution had been silent on the subject. More than this; statutes have for years been enforced by some of the States, that, when tested before the competent tribunal, were at once declared unconstitutional and void.

There will probably, hereafter, be much less debate