“THAT IS TO SAY—”

In crown 8vo, cloth gilt, 6s.

Aberdeen Daily Journal.—“To beguile a few hours pleasantly, there could be no more obsequy companion than ‘Rita’s’ piquant and lively volume of short stories.”

Dublin Daily Express.—“A new book by ‘Rita’ is always welcome. ‘That is to Say’ is a collection of stories, all good, some excellent, told in ‘Rita’s’ inimitably fresh and kindly fashion.”

Northern Whig.—“Throughout the stories we find the same freshness and charm which have at all times been characteristic of this lady’s writings. The stories are all excellent, and we leave them to the judgment of the reader, with the assurance that true enjoyment will be found in their perusal.”

Glasgow Herald.—“The dialogue is particularly good; ‘Rita’ is an adept at opening the window of a soul quickly and without fuss, and occasionally to highly dramatic purpose.”

Dundee Courier.—“A collection of stories which can be recommended to the reader who wants to be interested and amused.”

PREFACE

A BRIEF two months' experience of American cities, life, manners, habits, and hospitality, is scarce equipment for criticism. One forms opinions which after-results modify. One salutes the Goddess Liberty with respect, and finds oneself laughing in one's sleeve a week later at the free translation of the word "Freedom." One is called upon to admire in one city what is scoffed at in another. But above all one speedily learns that the term "American" is too comprehensive for general use.

New York is not American ; assuredly Washington is not American ; and only a benighted foreigner would ever so misname Boston. Between all these cities there exists a frantic rivalry and a curiously ingenious diversity of
