PREFACE.

IN the following pages no pretensions are made to literary composition or elegance of diction. They are put forth simply as hints, both to those who purpose engaging actively in the cultivation of coffee, and as a guide to others who wish to know somewhat of the nature of the undertaking they are engaged in, when they subscribe for shares in any of the numerous coffee companies which are so frequently launched. During his planting experience of nearly a quarter of a century, the author has frequently, both in his own case and in that of others, had occasion to regret the absence of any such information as is here sought to be afforded, and if this publication should in any measure supply a need which is generally admitted, by those most acquainted with the subject, to be seriously felt by beginners, or should it lead to the subject being taken up by others more capable of dealing with it, the author's object will be obtained.
