NOTE.

THE substance of the matter included under the head of the "Canadian Banking System—Its Growth and Present Operation" in the following pages was embodied in an address delivered at the American Bankers' Convention, New Orleans, on November 12, 1891. The situation in the United States, then portrayed, still continues, except that the repeal of the purchase clause has since been accomplished. The forecast of danger, made at that time, was realized during 1893. The attention of the whole country is now centred upon the struggle for currency reform.

The Banking Act of Canada is given entire in the second part of the book. The clauses and sections of especial interest, in view of reforms proposed, are printed in heavy-faced type.
