PREFACE.

THOSE who receive this pamphlet are earnestly requested to examine its statements carefully, and to send me notice of all errors and omissions that may be discovered therein. In so doing, particular attention should be bestowed upon the dates. Probably a few errors will be detected in these, notwithstanding my efforts to make them as correct as possible. It is hoped that sufficient material may be received in this way to justify a reissue of these pages in a fuller and more accurate form.

I desire to thank the few who have aided me in preparing this genealogy, and to say to the many who have not, that much of its incompleteness is due to their neglect and want of courtesy. Imperfect as the work is, it has cost me considerable time and labor—much more, indeed, than will appear possible to those who merely glance over its pages. No one regrets so much as myself the meager results of my efforts to do for other people what they will not do for themselves.

I have collected the material for two more volumes on the Phoenix family, which will probably be printed
