EDITOR'S PREFACE.

This fifth annual issue of the Handbook of Graduate Courses follows in general the methods of previous editions. The aim continues to be to give simply essential facts, without attempting to supplant the detailed publications issued by the several colleges and universities. The officers whose names and addresses are given in the introductory sketches in the following pages will send complete announcements to all applicants.

The Handbook is the official organ of the Federation of Graduate Clubs. An extended abstract of the proceedings of the last Convention of the Federation is therefore included in the compilation.

Full control of the Handbook is vested in the Publication Committee of the Federation. The Committee is constituted by the election of an Editor-in-Chief by the annual convention, and by the choice of an Assistant Editor by the Graduate Club in each of the institutions whose courses appear in the book. Several new applications for the inclusion of courses have been received, but the action of the Committee has been uniformly unfavorable. Most of the Editors adopt the conservative attitude of expecting a considerable development of graduate instruction before admitting the courses of any additional institution.

It is a matter for great regret that circumstances quite beyond the control of the Editor have conspired to delay publication a month beyond the anticipated date. Seniors and Graduate Students should have the use of the Handbook in the last weeks of the collegiate year, before June 1st.

The Federation of Graduate Clubs.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE ANNUAL CONVENTION, WITH RE- PORTS OF COMMITTEES, AND LISTS OF OFFICERS.

The Convention of the Federation of Graduate Clubs met with the Johns Hopkins Club in Baltimore on December 29th, 1896, and continued its sessions during two days. Besides visiting graduate students, the regular delegates present were twenty-eight in number, representing Barnard, Brown, Bryn Mawr, Chicago, Clark, Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Radcliffe, Wellesley, Western Reserve, Wisconsin, and Yale.

On behalf of Johns Hopkins University, President D. C. Gilman delivered the address of welcome to the Convention. His remarks were reminiscent of the discouragements which had met him when a young man seeking graduate instruction in American colleges. He welcomed the Convention both as an evidence of the great development that had taken place during forty years and as a promise of the continued growth of the university spirit among American students.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The report of the Executive Committee of the Federation was then read by President F. L. Luqueer, of Columbia. He submitted in the first place a general view of the numbers and distribution of the graduate students represented by the Federation. In the twenty-four colleges or universities mentioned in the tabular list of the last Handbook there were 3,204 graduate students, of whom 650, or a little over one-fifth, were women. In the same institutions there were
