THE JOHN BOHLEN LECTURESHIP

JOHN BOHLEN, who died in this city on the twenty-sixth day of April, 1874, bequeathed to trustees a fund of one hundred thousand dollars, to be distributed to religious and charitable objects in accordance with the well-known wishes of the testator.

By a deed of trust, executed June 2, 1875, the trustees under the will of Mr. Bohlen transferred and paid over to "The Rector, Church Wardens, and Vestrymen of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Philadelphia," in trust, a sum of money for certain designated purposes, out of which fund the sum of ten thousand dollars was set apart for the endowment of THE JOHN BOHLEN LECTURESHIP, upon the following terms and conditions:—

The money shall be invested in good substantial and safe securities, and held in trust for a fund to be called The John Bohlen Lectureship, and the income shall be applied annually to the payment of a qualified person, whether clergyman or layman, for the delivery and publication of at least one hundred copies of two or more lecture sermons. These Lectures shall be delivered at such time and place, in the city of Philadelphia, as the persons nominated to appoint the lecturer shall from time to time determine, giving at least six months notice to the person appointed to deliver the same, when the same may conveniently be done, and in no case selecting the same person as lecturer a second time within a period of five years. The payment shall be made to said lecturer, after the lectures have been printed and received by the trustees, of all the income for the year derived from said fund, after defraying the expense of printing the lectures and the other incidental expenses attending the same.

The subject of such lectures shall be such as is within the terms set forth in the will of the Rev. John Bampton, for the delivery of what are known as the "Bampton Lectures," at Oxford, or any other subject distinctively connected with or relating to the Christian Religion.

The lecturer shall be appointed annually in the month of May, or as soon thereafter as can conveniently be done, by the persons who, for the time being, shall hold the offices of Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Diocese in which is the Church of the Holy Trinity; the Rector of said Church; the Professor of Biblical Learning, the Professor of Systematic Divinity, and the Professor of Ecclesiastical History, in the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Philadelphia.

In case either of said offices are vacant the others may nominate the lecturer.

Under this trust, the Reverend Samuel Hart, D.D., LL.D., D.C.L., Dean of Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Connecticut, was appointed to deliver the lectures for the year 1914.

LECTURE II

FAITH IN GOD

Faith and its expression . . . . .	31
I. Faith implies a personal relation . . . . .	32
Meaning of faith in a person . . . . .	33
All faith is really in God . . . . .	33
God never known except by faith . . . . .	34
II. How we have come to faith in God . . . . .	35
How we approve faith in Him . . . . .	36
But faith comes from Him because He is . . . . .	38
Its great truth, that God is One . . . . .	40
Not an easy truth, formerly or now . . . . .	41
III. Jewish monotheism largely henotheism . . . . .	42
And failed to apprehend integral one-ness . . . . .	43
But poets and prophets gained faith in one living God . . . . .	44
Their faith in the Wisdom or Word of God and in the Spirit or Life of God . . . . .	45
Seen in the later books of the Canon and in extra-canonical writings . . . . .	46
Quickened at the beginning of the Gospel made distinct in Christ's teaching . . . . .	48
IV. Faith here preceded the faith . . . . .	52
inspired by reality, leading to a person . . . . .	53
The Spirit known later than the Son, though we might expect the contrary . . . . .	54
This is pure faith, in thought, life, knowledge . . . . .	56
