(WITH HAT IN HAND.)

*I dedicate my verse to those
Who really do not like my prose.
If these all like and buy my verse
Then Joan must knit a larger purse.*

(AT THE DOOR.)

*I do not come in purple dressed,
In pride of trolis and catches;
I come in rags and stand confessed
A poet of shreds and patches.*

*I bring to you but vagrant rhymes,
Born in all sorts of weather,
Of different moods, at different times,
Now gotten first together.*

*If some go lame, and the foot-gear
Of others needs revamping,
You will not think it very queer—
So long they've been a-stramping.*

*But since I come in humble frame,
Perhaps you'll lift your latchet,
And take me in for what I am,—
A poet of shreds and patches.*
