“ Henceforth I learn that to obey is best,
And love with fear the only God, to walk
As in His presence, ever to observe
His providence, and on Him sole depend,
Merciful over all His works, with good
Still overcoming evil ; and by small
Accomplishing great things, by things deem'd weak
Subverting worldly strong, and worldly wise
By simply meek ; that suffering for truth's sake
Is fortitude to highest victory,
And to the faithful death the gate of life ;
Taught this by His example, whom I now
Acknowledge my Redeemer ever bless'd.”

MILTON.

THE following chapters (with the exception of the introductory one, which was written afterwards) were first given to the public in the form of sermons delivered in a little School-church, or Chapel - of - ease, in the Parish of Marmullane, county Cork. As I have reason to believe that they were (some of them, at least) blessed by God to the refreshment, and, as I hope, the building up, of some of His servants at that place, I have ventured, hoping that it may please the Master further to use them in His blessed service, to make them into a little book. And I pray earnestly, as I send it forth, that He will widely bless it to the praise and glory of His dear name, the spread of His kingdom, and the strengthening of the spiritual life in His people ; their more complete self-consecration to His service, their growth in grace, and their increase in every good word and work.
