FRANCIS S. SALTUS.

DIED JUNE 25, 1889.

A genius died last night, about whose brow Fame never twined the laurel and the rose. A master he of music, verse and prose, Who lived, laughed, loved, and suffered, to endow

The world with buds and blossoms from the bough
That sways within the garden where Thought grows
When the gale of Inspiration madly blows
The daisies of sweet Song before God's plow!

Ah! who can wear the laurel, now he's dead?

Not one among the many whom he knew!

Pluck not the leaf for any—leave it there;

And Time will weave it for his wondrous head,

And Fame may bear it up beyond the blue—

To where he sits and laughs with Baudelaire!

JOHN ERNEST MCCANN.
