SOME PRESS OPINIONS

She has more than a profusion of beautiful things . . . her poems achieve an uncommon outward gorgeousness and inward glory.—Mr. EDWARD THOMAS in the Daily Chronicle.

She has at her command a wealth of delicate imagery entirely and truly Indian. . . . its merit is incontestable and its charm all its own.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Fine expression of a nature rich in emotions. To find an Indian atmosphere making fragrant English poems is a rare pleasure.—The Times.

She possesses her qualities in heaped measure. Her boldness of feeling, imagery and expression is exuberant, superb and abounding in spacious gestures. Mrs. Naidu enriches contemporary verse by her mastery and her brilliant temperament.—The Bookman.

Strikingly delicious and unique. There is the personal appraisal, the lyric fervour that is so rare and conclusive an accomplishment. When we have recovered from the shock of poetic delight, we are left marvelling that the instrument of our own familiar language has been so nobly entreated by one of alien tongue.—The Academy.

Very genuine and very original music.—The Sphere.

She has in a high degree that sense of the beauty and mystery which is too rare. . . . She scatters memorable phrases over a page like stars, and yet knows how to reserve beauty for the close of a poem. . . . Mrs. Naidu is more than the poet of the moment, of its splendour and transiency, its burden or its rapture. The heart of her country lives in her.—The Manchester Guardian.

Her songs are children of surprise. They break forth fresh and fragrant . . . each is a finished thing and a perfect delight.—Yorkshire Observer.

Mrs. Naidu has not only enriched our language but has enabled us to grow into intimate relation with the spirit, the emotions, the mysticism and the glamour of the East.—Yorkshire Post.

There are beautiful things in "The Bird of Time." These poems are remarkable and open a wide window upon a strange world. She has worthily won our English laurels.—T.P.'s Weekly.

SOME PRESS OPINIONS

In the forefront I must place Sarojini Naidu's exquisitely musical collection of Oriental lyrics and poems. This little volume should silence for ever the scoffer who declares that women cannot write poetry.—Review of Reviews.

Her poetry seems to sing itself as if her swift thoughts and strong emotions sprang into lyrics of themselves. . . . In this case, the marriage of western culture with eastern has not proved barren. It has given the poet new eyes with which to see old things. The result is something unique which we need not hesitate to call poetry.—The Times.

A book of verse of undeniable beauty and distinction. . . . Her work is remarkable, opening a window through which the West may see the East if it will.—T.P.'s Weekly.

There are some small poems describing the daily life of the East which have an astonishing vividness. It is a rare art which gives the true effect of poetry in what is, after all, only the accurate statement of what the eye has seen. . . . The book is one not merely of accomplished but beautiful verse, it is the expression of a temperament.—Morning Post.

Full of beauty. . . . What is as delightful as surprising is its individuality : a perfection of its own that owes but little to any one. . . . Not for a very long time have we seen a volume of poetry so full of promise and real achievement.—The Academy.

Instinct with a graceful delicacy of thought and language.—Saturday Review.

Delicacy and splendour of rhythm, beauty of phrase, and pomp and subtlety of expression are all at her command. . . . Her thought's crowning delight is to find radiant utterance. . . . The pictures are of the East it is true : but there is something fundamentally human in them that seems to prove that the best song knows nothing of East or West. . . . Street Cries is well worth quoting. This is the true lyric : song, picture, and emotion in one.—Glasgow Herald.

It is a considerable delight to come across such genuine poetry as is contained in THE GOLDEN THRESHOLD. It is always musical, its Eastern colour is fresh, and its firm touch is quick and delicate.—Manchester Guardian.

The great charm of this gifted poetess is that, though so perfect a mistress of the English language, she remains a true Indian in her thoughts and imagery. She gives us Indian pictures in English verse which have the ring of originality. She copies no one and is always herself.—Madras Times.
