P R E F A C E .

The system of thought to which I have given the name "Philosophy of Integration" resembles, on the one hand, the Idealistic Philosophy of Hegel, and on the other, the Synthetic Philosophy of Herbert Spencer; but it differs from either, or both, as a child differs from its parents. It was first made public in a paper read before the Brooklyn Clerical League, in 1895, and published in outline, in 1896, under the title "Old Dogma in a New Light" for the facts in the life of Christ I have gone chiefly to the Bible itself, but have also made use of the works of Pearson, Blunt, Liddon, Westcott, Farrar and others, whose assistance I gratefully acknowledge.
