PREFACE.

To the Congregation of St. Luke's Church, Berwick Street.

I HAVE been occasionally asked to publish some more Sermons, and in reply to these requests I print the substance of a course of lectures I preached in St. Luke's Church some time ago. They have been recast in the form now before you, and rewritten.

Yours faithfully,

HARRY JONES.

May, 1869.

P.S.—It will be seen that in these pages I have not dwelt upon our Lord's Divinity, nor the sacrifice of the Christ for the sins of the world. I have tried to confine myself to the subject indicated in the title of this little work, "The Perfect Man; or, Jesus an Example of Godly Life."

In one page I have repeated a few sentences from a previous publication of my own, as they seemed to say what I then wanted as well as any fresh form of words I could provide for my meaning.
