INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

It has been my privilege to visit with frequency that extensive area in Northern New York, known as the Adirondacks. On every occasion I have had for companions those whom I have loved; whose willing hands, thoughtful ways and bouyant spirits made each outing one of delightful memories. It is pleasurable to add that by them, as by myself, Sunday was always welcomed; nor were its hours allowed to pass without such religious services as the occasion would permit. At these gatherings, the Sermons comprising this little volume were delivered, and, with some few additions, are now printed as a souvenir of the past; with the added hope that others may find in them something suggestive.

*The groves were God's first temples. Ere man learned
To hew the shaft, and lay the architrave,
And spread the roof above them,—ere he framed
The lofty vault, to gather and roll back
The sound of anthems; in the darkling wood,
Amidst the cool and silence he knelt down
And offered to the Mightiest solemn thanks and supplication.*
