TO A. H. M.

DEAR A. H. M.:—You suggested in one of your former letters to me that I mail you one of “the very first volumes of those old Colby yarns.” It gives me the greatest pleasure, as a slight regard for our friendship, to carry out the suggestion which you make. Should the mission of the book prove wholly praiseworthy, and the words between its covers tend to arouse a too dormant college-spirit, I shall feel liberally rewarded for all the work that the volume has cost me.

Sincerely yours,

H. C. L.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

To the following men of Colby College who have contributed to these pages, the editor wishes to thus publicly proclaim his thanks for their kindly co-operation and good wishes:
