INTRODUCTION.

“OF the making of books, there is no end.” If this was true in Solomon’s day, how much more true in our day?

The saying of the wise man can also be applied to many special departments of literature. It can be said with truth, “of the making of sermon books, there is no end.” Why, then, send forth another Book of Sermons?

Does it bring out truths unknown before? Does it occupy ground unused before? Does it treat of subjects not handled in the past? No! It sets forth truth as old as Revelation. It tills in fields that have been broken and dragged and rolled by all sorts of ploughmen and teams and implements. It treats of a trite and worn and common subject.

God was treating of it and aiming at it when He said in Eden: “Adam, where art thou?” God’s Book is full of it. Books and sermons without number have been written upon it.

Why, then, a new book of sermons on conversion?
