PREFACE

It would not be right to send forth this short Memoir without expressing the writer's thanks, in which he knows well every reader will join, to those friends of the late Sir Nathan Bodington who have adorned its pages with some of their most valued recollections of this or that period in his career ; in particular he would wish to name Mr. Warde Fowler, Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford ; Dr. Jayne, Bishop of Chester ; and Sir Arthur Rücker, late Principal of London University. And these pages owe no less to the assistance throughout of Lady Bodington, without whose help, as will be evident, many of the incidents in the latter part of the book could not have been recorded.
