MUCH of the substance of this little volume appeared a few months ago as an article in the Nineteenth Century, and is now utilised with the kind permission of the proprietor of that periodical.

The original paper has been mostly rewritten and considerably enlarged, the brevity of a magazine article having necessitated the omission of many points which are now inserted, and fresh matter for discussion having arisen since it appeared.

My excuse for republication in the present form is my strong sense of the importance of the subject itself, however unworthily handled.
