PREFACE

SOME of the reminiscences recorded in the following pages were originally written for Land and Water—to whose editor I am indebted for unvarying courtesy and kindness—and for other papers.

The idea of publishing some of my recollections in book form was suggested in the smoking-room, after a very pleasant shoot, by some keen old friends, well known in the world of sport, who urged me to write a series of short anecdotes relating to various forms of our common pleasure, based on personal and practical experience.

Well, I have made this attempt to interest those with sporting tastes and proclivities, and if I have failed, I feel sure that brother
