NEW WORKS—PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

IMPROVED LIST.

MR. WEALE'S NEW SERIES OF RUDIMENTARY WORKS FOR BEGINNERS.

MR. WEALE has prepared for publication, in a neat and convenient size, a Series of original and useful Volumes, by the most esteemed writers, forming a Rudimentary Course for the easy comprehension of the leading principles of various Sciences.

It has been remarked that "those who are in the ship of Science ought to remember that the disciples cannot arrive without the aid of boats." Popular treatises are to Science what boats are to large ships; they assist people in getting aboard; but as no one would trust himself to a weak or inefficient boat, so no one ought to begin the study of Science with an imperfect guide. It sometimes happens that popular treatises are made to appear easy by the omission of those very details which are most essential to be known: they state results without going through the necessary processes by which those results are gained: they deal largely in facts, and leave principles untouched.

The only method of avoiding this error is to confide to men, who are masters of their respective subjects, the task of drawing up Popular Introductions to the several branches of Science. The Publisher trusts that the following list of names will be a sufficient guarantee to the Public that what he proposes to attempt in the cause of Popular Instruction will be done well, and that these little treatises will fully answer the purpose for which they are intended, namely, to become convenient and accurate Guide-Books in Government and other Schools, and in Popular Institutions generally, while their low price will place them within the reach of all classes earning their daily bread, to many of whom a knowledge of the elements of Science is a positive gain in the common pursuits of life, as well as a means of winning from gross tastes, and presenting to the mind noble and worthy objects of study.

The First Series, several volumes of which are amply illustrated, may be had complete in demy 12mo, neatly bound in cloth; and, for the convenience of purchasers, the several Subjects are published separately at the following prices:—

PREFACE.

THIS little work is divided into three Sections, with a view to prevent loss of time to the student. After making himself master of the first section, he may enter upon the subject of the second or third, according as it may be desirable for him to direct his attention to a Mathematical or to a Commercial course of study.

The solutions of many examples are given at length, and to these the pupil is recommended to pay particular attention. Of the other examples, a certain number are given with the answers, and the rest without them, in the hope that the student will thus be induced to rely in some measure upon himself for the accuracy of his work.

In order to facilitate and encourage frequent self-examination, numerous questions have been introduced at intervals throughout the work, which it is hoped the student will endeavour to answer before he proceeds to the consideration of the succeeding subjects. It will be advantageous to him, from time to time, to make use of the Examination Papers at the end of the book; some of which he will find, at every stage, practically useful, as tests of the soundness of his progress, and of his comprehension of the subject.
