PREFACE.

SINCE the following pages were written, orders have been issued dealing with the musketry training of the Army, and instituting a six weeks' course of instruction for each company of infantry.

These orders are a step forward towards the better training of our soldiers ; yet the author submits his paper almost unaltered, believing that, unless the conditions of our service be materially changed, the field training of our Army must eventually proceed on the lines he has sketched out.

BEVERLEY : June 20, 1883.
