E find that the Manor of Barn Elms was given by Athelstane' (925-940) to the Canons of St. Paul, and has been held by them ever since, with the exception of its temporary alienation in the time of Cromwell. The name, according to Lysons, is the Saxon berne, a barn and it has been suggested the Canons may have had a spicarium or great barn here; but others think that Barn was the patronymic of a family or tribe, as in Barnsbury, etc., and no doubt the parish of Barnes and the Common take their name from the same origin.

In the time of King Edward (1042-1066) it was assessed at eight hides  $(\pounds 6)$ , and in the Conqueror's time at  $\pounds 7$ , which was included in the rate with the Archbishop's Manor of Mortlake, as it is at present.

<sup>3</sup> This taxation was made at the time that Pope Nicholas IV. granted a tenth of all ecclesiastical revenues to the King to defray the expenses of the Holy War. A record of this taxation is preserved in the Exchequer; another copy is in the Bodleian Library, and is often referred to by the title of the Bodleian Valor. The valuation of ecclesiastical revenues was the same in most instances in 1405, when the clergy of the province of Canterbury granted a tenth to the King. (Vids Regist. Winton at the beginning of Heaufort's Register.) The valuation in the King's books was made in 1534.

In the year 1283 there was a royal mandate that this Manor should not be leased to any but members of the Church of St. Paul's. About the year 1256 it was leased to Robert de Barton, precentor, for life, subject to the annual payment of three rents in bread and beer, the customary dues to the bakehouse and beerhouse, and forty shillings per annum to the Chapter; several other leases to members of the Church are preserved among the records.

In the taxation of Pope Nicholas about 1291, the property is valued as the property of the Canons at £12.3 In the reign of Edward II. the Canons obtained from the King a charter of free warren, and an exception of the burthensome charge of purveyance.

From the Patent Rolls of the tenth year of Henry IV. (1409), it appears that the Archbishop of Canterbury was entitled to a sparrow-hawk (esperverium) or 25. in money annually, and also £2 every twentieth year, for ever, from the Lords of the Manor of Barnes, belonging to the Canons of St. Paul's, that they might be excused from serving from the office of reeve in his Manor of Wimbledon.

This, like most estates belonging to ecclesiastical bodies, has been generally let on lease for long terms.

In the fifteenth century the Manor was again leased to laymen, for, in 1467 (temp. Edward IV.), Sir John Saye and others were lessees of this Manor, which they held with the advowson, and presented to the living in that year, and again in 1471 and Both the Manor and advowson had been 1477. transferred, in or before 1480, to Thomas Thwayte," Chancellor of the Exchequer, and of the Duchy of Lancaster. In 1504 (19th year of Henry VII.) a lease was granted to Henry Wiatt, Esq.,* who appears to have been afterwards knighted, for, in 1513 and 1524 (temp. Henry VIII.), Sir Henry Wiatt, Knight, presented to the living as patron and grantee of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's. The Wiatts had a long lease, which, by assignment, passed through several hands. Sir Andrew Judd was in possession in 1555; James Altham in 1577; Thomas Smythe in 1573, and, in 1579, Richard Martin, Alderman of London. In 1579 he sold his interest to Queen Elizabeth, who bought it for Sir Francis Walsingham '
