PREFACE

In presenting this little volume to the children of North Carolina there are two objects in view:

1. To stimulate study in North Carolina history.
2. To give supplementary reading matter, containing interesting facts.

For the promotion of these objects the author has selected events and incidents that have interest in themselves, and has told them in words simple enough for a child to understand.

The stories close with the eighteenth century, and embrace a portion of the two preceding centuries. If a desire to know more of the history of North Carolina be aroused, the chief object of the writer will have been attained.

Thanks are due Dr. Richard Dillard, of Edenton, for facts relative to the Edenton Tea Party, and to Major Graham Daves for valuable aid.

Suggestions to Teachers

To get the best results from the use of this book, the following suggestions may be helpful:

1. Let pupils study each story until it is thoroughly learned. To accomplish this, have them write a topical outline. Pupils will readily do this if they are assisted a few times by the teacher.

2. Let pupils read the story aloud in class by paragraphs. Do not stop them for mispronunciations until the paragraph is finished.

3. Let a number of pupils write their topical outlines at the board. Then let all read them and offer corrections and criticisms.

4. Call upon pupils to tell the story in their own words.

5. Let pupils write the story in their own words in a composition book for that purpose.

If this method, or one similar to it, be followed, much benefit will be derived.

THE AUTHOR.
