"They Shall Know Themselves Into One"

The following is the result of twenty-five years' research work, study, travel, and observation in many lands.

While radical it is constructive, not iconoclastic. In the latter direction we have had a flood not wholly bad, which it is difficult to, but imperative that we should, stem and control, and for which this book is an antidote.

It is not an attack on personalities but on conditions.

Atrocities being committed, notably in at least four countries now (1918), as well as in all countries all the time, point the moral, even though they do not adorn the tale.

It was not written for pleasure or profit. Those who are happily situated owe something to those who are not. Therein lies the reason for this writing. Whoever does not agree with positions taken must meet wiser minds than mine.

It is not that the writer loves man the less but woman more.

"I am half-sick of shadows," said the Lady of Shalott."

"THEY SHALL KNOW THEMSELVES INTO ONE"

A study in higher mental hygiene.

Correlating Biology, Science, Philosophy, and Religion

"Sometime in the search for Ideals (in answer to the cry of women—Why do we suffer so, why are we so sad?) a woman will reveal a new truth which will establish the whole relation of man and woman on a surer ground of mutual happiness."

Hawthorne.

"'Peace on earth, Good will' to Women and Children, as well as 'to Men.'"

DEDICATED

TO the Archangel (by comparison) my especial tyrant, who with a practical good sense of justice and of real values; by ready assistance and sympathy and by removing all obstacles (when possible) has helped and left me free to be myself, to see from my "separate star" things as they really are, and to make my plea; and to those friends who through earnest interest have helped to lighten the burden of misunderstanding; which will sometime be understanding.
