PHYSICIAN-IN-CHIEF AND SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

OF THE DEPARTMENT FOR MENTAL AND NERVOUS DISEASES,
WEST PHILADELPHIA

To the Managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital:

The Physician-in-Chief and Superintendent's report of the Department for Mental and Nervous Diseases for the year ending Second Month 28th, 1918, is respectfully presented:

How best to serve in helping win the war has been the anxious thought of all throughout the year. The menace of food shortage and high cost of living appeared even before the imperative call for our trained and experienced nurses and officers for military service.

The increase of production from the usual hospital gardens was encouraged to the utmost, and additional land ploughed from the lawns for tillage during spare hours by twenty-six officers and employees, most of whom had families to support outside the hospital. Their energy in cultivating these gardens was unflagging and rewarded by abundant harvest. Still greater interest is manifest in plans maturing for the coming season.

Conservation of food has been sought in two directions, reduction of waste in general and restricted use of the special articles most needed by the army. Apportionment according to definite rations in issues from stores and per capita distribution to departments have been the effective measures of control. The requirements of the
