Walter Ford

"Neglect of the art of education simply means that the teacher must, at best, blunder his way to success, laboriously correct his errors by the failure or mischief produced, and slowly discover things for himself which others have discovered before him. Why should we tread the thorny path of error, or traverse the dreary swamps of failure, when a safer, pleasanter, and shorter path has been pointed out to us by those who have travelled the road before us?"

LONDON.

PREFACE

THE object of this book is to deal popularly, and simply, with the rudiments of the science and art of religious education of children. It is intended for the use of parents and teachers—of parents because they are responsible for the souls of the children they have called into being—of teachers because having undertaken a part of the parents' responsibility, they naturally desire to know how to fulfil the duties of the position they have assumed.

I am indebted to Landon, Trumbull, and others who have written very ably upon the subject of education.
