MINUTES BY SIR BARNES PEACOCK.

No. I.

CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY OF MAHARANEE JUNDA KOUR IN CONNECTION WITH SIKH WAR.*

(22nd April, 1852.)

HAVING given the fullest consideration in my power to the facts relative to this property, it appears to me that it is neither necessary nor expedient to legislate upon the subject.

2. I have read with great care the opinions of the Advocate General of Bengal, and of Mr. Loftus Wigram, and entertaining, as I do, the highest respect for the great learning and abilities of those gentlemen. I cannot but feel distrust in my own opinion when I find it at variance with theirs I should have been glad, if circumstances would have allowed of my conferring with the Advocate General upon the subject.

3 In my opinion the Government have the right not merely to detain, but to confiscate the property.

4. It seems to be admitted that the property was that of the Maharanee at the time when it first came into the possession of the Government.

5. If the Maharanee assisted the Sikh people in their hostilities against the British, she subjected herself to be dealt with as an enemy, and her property to be seized and confiscated.

It seems doubtful, however, whether legal proof to that effect can be adduced, although there is no moral doubt of the fact.

7. But even if such proof be wanting, I think the Proclamation of the 29th March, 1849, is conclusive that a war existed between the Sikh nation and the British.

I find it there stated, "Finally, the Army of the State and the whole of the Sikh people, joined by many of the Sirdars in the Punjab, who signed the treaties, and led by a Member of the Regency itself, have risen in arms against us, and have waged a fierce and bloody war, for the proclaimed purpose of destroying the British and their power."

^{*} See, too, Minute No. 39 Just p. 87.

8. The Government of India were, in my opinion, the sole judges whether the whole of the Sikh nation were or were not responsible for the hostilities which had been carried on, and by the Proclamation above referred to, it was decided that the war had been waged by the Sikh nation, and that they must abide the consequences.

It appears to me that the effect of that Proclamation was conclusively to determine that every subject of that nation was an enemy, for whenever two nations are at war, all the subjects of the one are enemies of the other. Vattel, 321.

10. When hostilities have commenced, a State has a right to treat as enemies the subjects of the nation with which it is at war, and, subject to certain exceptions, to detain their persons as prisoners of war, and to seize and confiscate their property, Grotius B. 3, c. 9, s 4(1), and the Municipal Courts have no jurisdiction on the subject. Elphinstone v Bedree Chand, I Knapp, Pr. C. Cases 316.

II. In my opinion, it was not necessary actually to confiscate the property, pending the war, it was sufficient that the property was during the war in the possession and under the control of the Government.

12. It is laid down by Kent "that in a land war moveable property, after it has been in complete possession of the enemy for 24 hours, becomes absolutely his, without any right of postliminy in favour of the original owner," es. 1, Kent's Commentaries, 109.

13. This, I think, shows that no actual condemnation or confiscation is necessary in the case of such moveable property.

14. But even if confiscation were necessary, I find it stated in the Proclamation before adverted to—" The few chiefs who have not engaged in hostilities against the British shall retain their property and their rank," and again "The jagheers and all the property of Sirdars and others, who have, been in arms against the British, shall be confiscated to the State."

15. If, therefore, the Government of India think proper to confiscate the property, I am of opinion that they have the right to do so, and that no Municipal Court will have any jurisdiction

16. It is not necessary to consider whether the Government of India could now seize and confiscate property of the Maharance acquired since the Proclamation of 1849, for the property is actually in the possession of the Government, and was so prior to the termination of the war and prior to the Proclamation of March, 1849.

17. The question, therefore, as to the right to seize does not

The case of Egsodah Bye . Hon'ble East India Company, is very different. There the property was acquired by Chimna Appa after he was a British subject.
