SOULS IN PAWN.

"No one can idly lay aside the book, it being one of those enthralling tales that at once arrests the reader's attention and holds it closely to the finish."
—Scot's Pictorial.

"Of the sincerity of the writer, there can be no doubt, and the forcible character of her book challenges attention."
—Melbourne Age.

"A powerful and sincere piece of writing."
—Sydney Morning Herald.

"This is a novel worth reading."
—Western Mail, Perth.

SMOULDERING FIRES.

"A powerfully-written story . . . characters are well drawn, and the pictures of smaller scenery and of the street life of Melbourne, reveal evidences of the seeing eye and the reflective brain. A story which, though melodramatic, is not without considerable literary merit."
—Melbourne Age.

THE YEARS OF FORGETTING

“ ‘The Years of Forgetting’ is full of vivid human interest and sincerity.”—Birmingham Gazette.

“ A remarkable study, and quite a remarkable book. . . . Undoubtedly a book to be read.”—Liverpool Courier.

“ This new story is a great advance in workmanship on its predecessors.”—Adelaide Register.

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE.

“ A clever and sincere piece of writing, and one that holds the attention of the reader from start to finish.”—Sheffield Daily Telegraph.

“ Each situation is managed with great skill, and grips the attention to the finish. The description of the lonely bush farm is vivid and glowing, and the portraits are drawn with a frankness which commands belief. Sweet Rosemary is a delicate figure full of charm. This volume is decidedly of its writer’s best.”—Yorkshire Post.

*Author of "Smouldering Fires," "The Years of Forgetting,"
"Souls in Pawn," etc. etc.*

"And when the Gates of Silence are shut there are no more the old ways, neither the old things, with the Church . . . and neither shall there be idle longing, nor tears, nor desire for the vain things of this world. . . . But the words of the Church are idle, and as chaff scattered to the winds . . . for Love knows no barrier . . . and God is greater than the Church . . ."—From the Handbook of Modernism, p. 15.
